Sometimes we feel that we've never answered the question, "What do you want to be when you grow up?" We spend so much of our lives doing what others expect of us (or what we think they expect), that we never give ourselves the opportunity to ask ourself, "What do I want to be? What do I want to do?" The 250 quotations in this book are the words of artists, philosophers, writers, individuals from history, and others who braved doubt and the displeasure of others to follow their dreams.

At the end of the book is a chapter on ways you can incorporate these quotes into your daily life so that you'll find inspiration wherever you turn.
