Critical Incidents In Clinical Supervision: Addictions, Community, and School Counseling Lawrence E. Tyson

Sharpen your supervision skills with this book that goes to the heart of what constitutes good practice. Providing essential information and guidance for clinicians on critical aspects of supervision, counselor educators and practitioners respond to case incidents in which a supervisor or supervisee is facing an ethical, moral, legal, or clinical dilemma. Thirty-three incidents addressing supervision issues that commonly occur in chemical dependency, community counseling, and school settings are presented.

Topics covered in this text include: substance abuse recovery concerns, counter-transference, parallel process, relapse, power differentials in the supervisory relationship, working alliances between supervisors and supervisees, managing conflict, sexuality issues, dual relationships, ethical decision making, confidentiality, duty to warn, supervisee evaluation, technology use, cultural competence, supervision contracts, group counseling, and counselor training.

This book is an important contribution for those concerned with the accountability and effectiveness of mental health service delivery and represents a significant step toward high quality supervision. Helpful across all levels of experience this is a perfect handbook for clinical supervisors, clinical directors, and supervisees in the field, as well as an outstanding teaching tool for master s or doctoral level courses in supervision.

Kenneth Sigler:

As a student exactly feel bored to be able to reading. If their teacher inquired them to go to the library or even make summary for some guide, they are complained. Just minor students that has reading's spirit or real their leisure activity. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading seriously. Any students feel that reading is not important, boring and also can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is being complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Critical Incidents In Clinical Supervision: Addictions, Community, and School Counseling can make you really feel more interested to read.
