Xirena hasn't smiled in years. People whisper about her wherever she goes. They say horrible things about her. She is so different from what her society expects of her. She hears everything that they say but maintains a cool, impenetrable exterior and relies only on herself. One day she meets Kai, the smoking hot seventeen-year-old next door. All the girls are swooning over him, but he is captivated by Xirena.

Though Xirena cannot deny the magnetic attraction they both feel for one another, when Kai falls in love with her, she steels herself against him, not wanting to believe that life can be different than the dreariness she has lived and envisioned for her future. The prospect of trusting someone, of allowing them to enter her secret and innermost being is unthinkable.
